RECORD

Facts Disclosed By An Examination of Mr. Arbury's Official Career.

Less Than Twenty-Five Convictions Out of One Hundred Indictments.

Tells Why He Complained Against Gambling in the City.

After being in office for nearly two years County Attorney Arbury has disclosed that gambling has been going on in this city. A very remarkable coincidence is that he discovered it within a few days of an election, at which he is a candidate for re-election. Still another coincidence is that he makes political capital out of it by stating that the gamblers have been giving up blood money, and that that money is being used to further the cause of the ticket which opposes him. To be sure he lays this charge upon a mysterious gentleman, whom he calls good authority, but whose name does not appear.

Mr. Arbury admits that he knows there was gambling during the Republican administration preceding Mayor Truesdell's. He says that he spoke to the chief of police about it, and there was some sort of a raid. There was never a whisper of a given publicity. There was a charge of bribery, and everything was done very quietly and softly. Of course the fact that Mr. Arbury was a Republican, and that that administration was also Republican, had nothing to do with it. And, of course, the fact that Mr. Arbury is running for office, and that the present administration is Democratic, has nothing to do with this outcry about gambling.

The effect of the flaring head lines in the morning paper is that there is great wealth to come from the county attorney unless the gambling places shut up shop. There is no one in the city who is not a gambler, and the quicker the gambling rooms are sealed up the better for the public, everyone will agree. But the threat of legal retaliation is a weak one, judging from the record of Mr. Arbury as county attorney.

His record as county attorney is not one calculated to strike terror into the hearts of gamblers or any other criminals.

What has he done? SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES. - In the cases and the records show for themselves. Leaving out the cases where pleas of guilty were entered, which are inconsequential other than the number of criminal cases, he has secured during Mr. Arbury's term was 101.

Of that number seventy-six were either dismissed because of defects in the indictment, or the evidence, or verdicts of not guilty were returned. The total number of actual convictions secured during Mr. Arbury's term was twenty-five.

At the last term of court a better record of convictions was secured than at any previous term. Mr. Arbury was ill, and Assistant County Attorney McPherson secured convictions, making about one-third of the whole number, leaving Mr. Arbury the credit of securing sixteen out of ninety-three cases actually convicted by him.

These figures are taken from the criminal docket in the office of the clerk of district court. The Herald has a list of the convicted cases, and these have been verified from the records at the court house. This list begins with Samuel Cray, whose indictment was secured during Mr. Arbury's term was indicted and convicted, and who was released from state prison and tried again because of a defect in the indictment. The list ends with the last case at the last term against George N. Mesnick, who was found not guilty of illegal possession of a gun.

Many of these cases which were last term cost the county $500 and $600, and cost several of the grand juries was brought in proportion to the resultant convictions. In one case a witness was brought from the Pacific coast at a cost of $150, when it was discovered that the indictment did not state a public offense, and it was ruled out.

In any of these cases which were last term the county attorney was not the cause of public notoriety. In several forgers cases the county attorney rested his case and asked convictions when he had not a scintilla of evidence that the alleged forged papers were not what they purported to be, and in no case there was not the least doubt of the guilt of the defendants, nevertheless they were free because the state's failure to prove its case.

Truly the county attorney needs desperate measures to bolster up his campaign.

He Intended No Reflection on Chief Hansen.

The Herald saw County Attorney Arbury this morning in reference to his interview in the morning paper, in which he says that complaint had been made that eleven gambling houses were running in the city, and that each of these places had been paying $30 per week for police protection, part of which was being used in the silver campaign, and the rest divided up among the heads of the police department.

After a tirade against The Herald, which, he alleged, had persecuted him, Mr. Arbury spoke of the request for him to explain why the personal property tax suit against the gas and water company had never been pushed. He stated that everyone knew the circumstances of that case, but he offered no explanation, believing probably that as everyone knew about it there was no use to explain it. Being asked to the question before the house, Mr. Arbury said:

"I did give that interview to the News Tribune, but I am sorry I have been so manipulated that it puts Chief Hansen in a bad light. When this complaint was made to me, I had an interview with Chief Hansen. He said that if there was anything of the kind going on, he knew nothing of it. I told him that I had been told by him, and he said that if my statements were true, he would see that these gambling places were closed by Thursday morning. Mr. Hansen and I are good friends, and I have no desire to put him in a bad light."

"What is your authority for the statement that these bribes from the gamblers are being used in the silver campaign?" asked the reporter.

"I don't know what the authority is, but that is the story. I was promised on good authority that if these men were prosecuted that state of facts could be shown. My informant is a well known person, and it is possible that he will consent to the use of his name. I will see him about it."

"Is this the first time that complaints asked the reporter, 'Were there none of gambling have been made to you?' during the Republican administration preceding Mayor Truesdell's?"

"Yes, there were, and I spoke to Chief Armstrong about it. My complaint was followed by some sort of a raid, I believe."

"Why was it that there was no publicity to the matter and no charges of bribery under a Republican administration, when a serious charge of this nature is sprung within a few days of election?"

"I do not know who is responsible for the publicity," responded the county attorney.

AN ATTORNEY COMMENTS. A member of the bar, commenting upon Mr. Arbury's action, said to a Herald reporter today:

"Mr. Arbury's sudden awakening, just two weeks before election, to the fact that gambling has been going on in Duluth is most remarkable. The county attorney has evidently been in a trance for the past eighteen months or two years. Why has he never disturbed these gamblers before? You know, I know that gambling houses have operated in this city nearly all the time in the last two years, yes, the last four years or more, for that matter, and Mr. Arbury knows it, too. If he does not, I want to further proof of his incompetency to hold the office of county attorney."

"I understand he claims to believe the absurd story that the gamblers were being bled for the benefit of the silver fund. I don't see how any man of intelligence would believe such a flimsy yarn, but supposing that he does, I would like to ask if that is what has spurred him to action after ignoring these gamblers for two years? Was it simply the thought that some money was being raised to aid in the defeat of the ticket on which he stands that brought him to a proper sense of duty? During the Republican administration no one ever heard of any attempt on his part to stop gambling, and there was any amount of it going on. Political considerations seem to govern Mr. Arbury's official action."

POLK COUNTY.

Supreme Court Decides the Famous Division Case.

St. Paul, Oct. 21.—Chief Justice Stark today handed down an opinion affirming the order of the lower court in the case of the State of Minnesota ex rel. H. W. Childs, attorney general, appellant, against the Pioneer Press company et al., respondents. The legislature of 1903 passed an act pursuant to which certain officers of Polk county presented petitions to the secretary of state for the organization of four new counties out of the county of Polk, viz., Hill, Lake, Lake and Garfield.

The state commission directed that the question of the creating of the four counties be submitted to the voters of Polk county at the next general election. The proclamation of the commission was ordered to be published for four successive weeks in the daily papers. The plaintiff brought action against the defendant to prevent the latter from collecting payment for the printing of the ground that the proceeding was illegal and void.

In the lower court Judge Willis directed the judgment in favor of the defendant's demurrer. An appeal was taken by the plaintiff and the decision of the lower court was affirmed.

A SACRAMENTO MURDER. Sacramento, Cal., Oct. 21.—In the lobby of the police court this morning James Lee, a St. Paul druggist, was indicted for the murder of a woman named Addie Schilling and then blew his own brains out. The woman was reported to have been a witness against him in a vagrancy case. She was married to a State Senator from San Jose. When shot the Schilling woman had in her pocket a letter written by her husband, who was suspected of arson.

JUNKIE OF THE GENERALS. Watertown, Wis., Oct. 21.—More than 1500 people assembled at the Milwaukee and St. Paul depot this morning to meet the special train upon which was General Buckner and his staff. The general was met by a band of music, and he was escorted to the train by a band of music. Many there displayed their military uniforms, and many of the grand juries was brought in proportion to the resultant convictions. TO ENFORCE LIABILITY.

Stockholders of the Superior Steel Plant Sued.

The receivers of the Land and River Improvement company have begun suit in district court against the West Superior Iron and Steel company to declare it insolvent, to sequester its property in Minnesota, and to enforce the statutory liability of its stockholders.

The complaint is a voluminous document, and after reciting the ownership of the plaintiff, it alleges that in 1899 the defendant company issued $1,320,000 bonds to the Central Trust company of New York, secured by a first mortgage on property in West Superior. In October, 1906, the mortgage was foreclosed, and the Central Trust company was appointed receiver of the company's property. The plaintiff alleges that he is about to bring suit against the Central Trust company, in which case there would be no assets left. The bondholders are now about $1,200,000, and it is alleged that there are debts amounting to $600,000 outside of this. If the property is sold under the mortgage foreclosure, the plaintiff alleges that it is a judgment creditor for $47,265.90, that the defendant's indebtedness is $2,000,000, that its assets are covered by the Central Trust company's mortgage, and that though the company is incorporated in Minnesota, with principal offices at St. Paul, it has no property in this state.

It is claimed that the $1,000,000 of capital stock of the company, stock to the amount of $750,000 is outstanding. The Central Trust company, which is given, Francis H. Weeks is the holder, he having $183,000. The plaintiff offered to buy the stock of the company for $100,000, but the defendant refused to sell. The plaintiff alleges that it is a judgment creditor for $47,265.90, that the defendant's indebtedness is $2,000,000, that its assets are covered by the Central Trust company's mortgage, and that though the company is incorporated in Minnesota, with principal offices at St. Paul, it has no property in this state.

The little town of Digby, N. Mr. Kinghorn was in conversation with a St. John Telegraph reporter and told the story of his find. He had been rowing along the bay shore at Granville in his boat one day last week and noticed some "stuffs" floating about. He kept six pounds of ambergris. He took it into his boat and tried to boil it down to make soft soap. He failed to do so, so he threw it away. He was told by a local druggist that it was worth $100,000. He then took it to the steamer Prince Rupert and took the druggist, which was worth $100,000. The examination, identified it, and on looking up it was found that it was worth $100,000. The fisherman's feelings can be imagined when he learned that he had wasted about ninety-four pounds of the ambergris, which had been sold for $56,000. It is only his left hand that will bring him when he has sold the sum of $56,000.

Tuesday Next, Oct. 27th The Day!

When the date on the calendar registers October the 27th, and Father Time marks the hour of 8 o'clock a. m., the doors of the NEW STORE will swing open to the public, thus giving free access to one of the most formidable gatherings of modern Merchandise ever displayed under one roof.

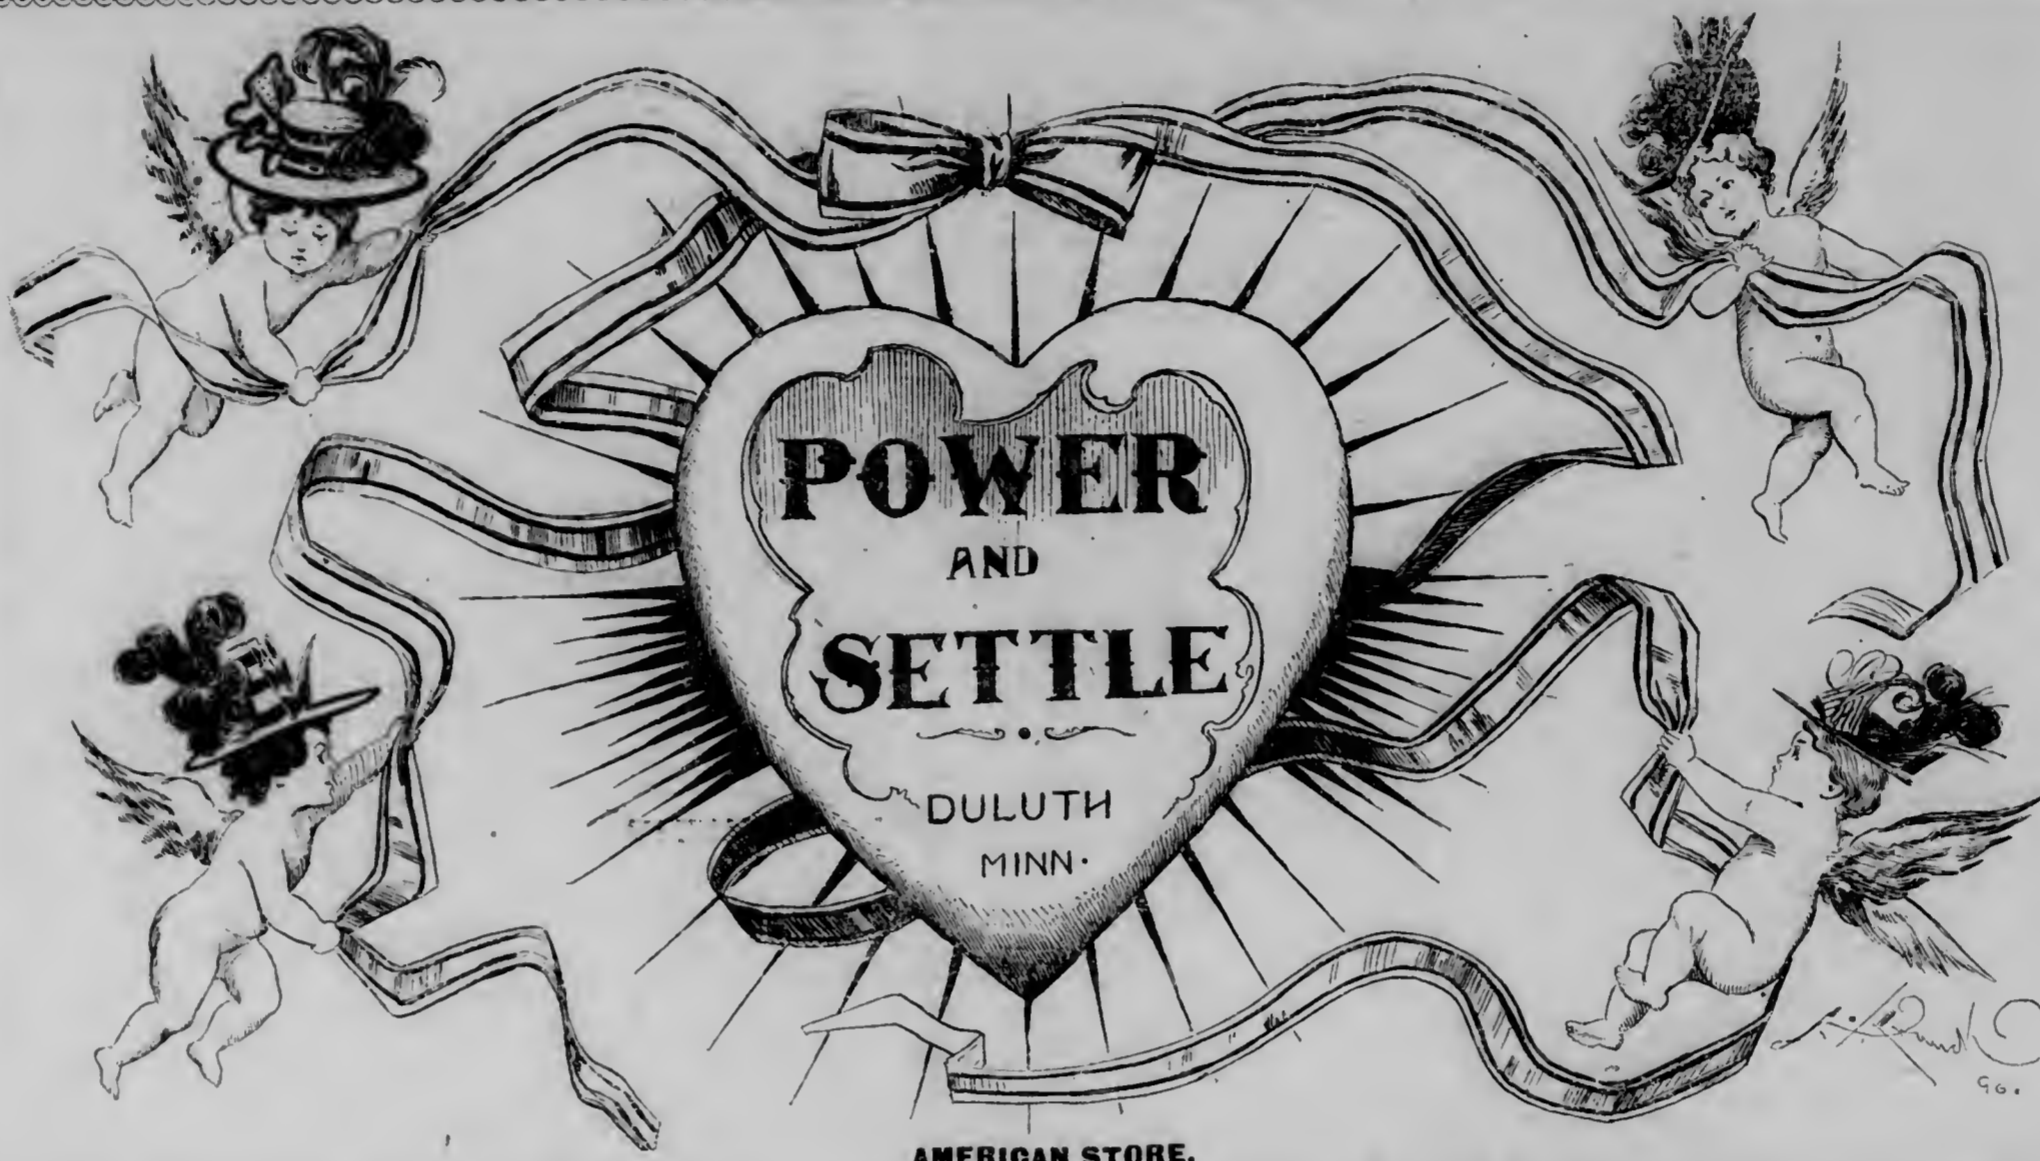

Herewith everyone is most cordially invited to honor us with their presence,

Method and Character:

As to the character, together with the methods to be employed and upheld in this house, expect that which is the result of honesty of purpose and proficiency of action. Hence the lack of ultra adjectives, describing wonders mythical and unknown, but on the contrary, the simple assertion attesting a firm determination to win and hold your patronage by being worthy of it.

Program of the Day!

Commencing at eight o'clock in the morning and continuing until 5:30 the time will be devoted to the display and sale of whatever is to your liking. From 5:30 until 7:30 the store will remain closed, from 7:30 until 10:30 in the evening flowers and music will prevail.

A Dainty Souvenir!

That is in keeping with the occasion will be presented to each and every visitor.

To Out-of-Town Visitors!

Every effort will be made to serve out-of-town patrons promptly and satisfactorily both on our opening day and in the future.

The First Dawn upon a new world of Women's Merchandise, probably the most important feature of interest to the Dry Goods buying public is the refreshing thought that everything—absolutely everything—in the New Store, IS NEW; NEW in style, NEW in make, NEW in every feature, fresh and modern, from the most formidable fashion centers of the world. Of Special Importance to those in need of Winter Wear:—Commencing Tuesday morning, we are going to forcibly illustrate the power of lowness in price in selling good reliable goods, which is the prime feature you will notice prevalent in the adopted selling system here.

Numerous Articles from the Following Departments Will Sell Cheap Tuesday— See Sunday's Paper and Monday Night's Herald for Quotations.

Dress Goodsand Silks.

Almost every one has within their mind's eye a keen conception of an ideal woolen fabric for a gown—some refined oddity, some unusual design of weave, some unusual color combination; in a word, something different. To all such we say, "You'll find your ideal here."

Commencing at the 25c mark and ranging up through myriads of fabrics and prices until you reach $3.50 a yard. You will be in constant touch with the most famous of dress goods artists and manufacturers. As to prices, you will observe they are decidedly below your expectations.

Silks, Velvets and Velveteens

For Skirts, Shirt Waists and Gowns will meet every idea you have culled from the recommendations of your most reliable fashion journal.

Cloaks..... Millinery.

So sure as a lady's street appearance depends largely upon the style, grace and shape of her wraps, so sure you will find Cloak Perfections here. Fit, finish and design in make, shape, length and quality of fabric, durability, style and character of workmanship are necessary features in the modern Cloak, and you'll find them here, with every feature perfect, accompanied with a price ticket that makes possession an easy matter.

Recently we advised you to "expect much of us in millinery." Now we say expect, not only more, but the most of us. There is a family of fashionable headgear being arranged for sale here Tuesday that will meet the highest ideas you can conceive of truly beautiful hats. Moderateness in price will add another strong element to their attractiveness.

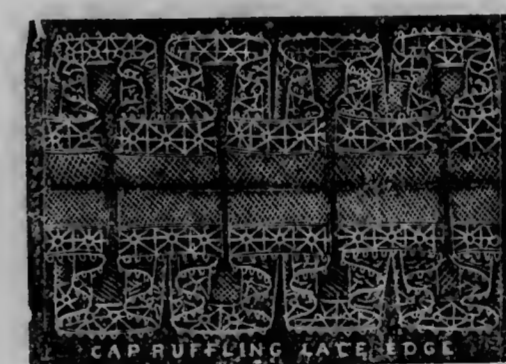

Gloves.

Together with many other standard brands we have secured the "Centemeri" Gloves for Duluth. It is hardly necessary to say more.

Laces and Trim'ings.

To have any value whatever Trimmings and Laces must be new, hence the importance of considering that every yard of Lace and every yard of Trimming in this house is entirely new, from the most narrow Italian Vals. to the finest of 9-inch Dutch.

ess Laces, together with all the modern effects in Drapery Nets in tinsel and plain, and all such wares that belong to these respective lines have yet to see the light of day since they left the makers' hands.

Handkerchiefs...

Outside of a few Swiss embroidered dress Handkerchiefs which sell from 25c down, our entire stock is Linen. Especial attention is directed to the hemstitched goods from 12½c to 75c in all widths of hem; also the hand embroidered Irish goods from 25c to $1.50.

Underwear and Hosiery.

In bringing out our Woolen Hosiery and Underwear strict adherence has been given to the hygienic principles in manufacture, thus assuring brands that are not only serviceable but conducive to health and comfort. Late styles in Silk Underwear and Hosiery are amongst the interesting attractions.

ANSWERS

Capt. D. H. Morgan's Reputation For Truth Is Still Undisturbed.

A Misunderstanding Which Could Have Easily Been Explained.

He Was With Gen. Siegel's Staff Not Gen. Sickles'.

There appeared in the morning paper an article purporting to "show up" Capt. D. H. Morgan, a silver veteran, who spoke at a large rally of silver veterans at Central Towns club headquarters, Sept. 27. The article was a protest against the attempt made to drum the old soldiers into line to vote for Hanna and his little friend McKinley. It was held soon after the traveling aggregation of generals, including one of the wearers of the Purple Heart, who had never been near enough a battlefield to run any risk of getting hurt, according to statements made by several of the veterans at that rally, which statements have never been disputed. Some of them went so far as to say that the Pennsylvania man had never been a general, which statements, also, have never been disputed.

At this meeting, Capt. Morgan paid his respects to Gen. Sickles, and told of the lack of consideration shown by the latter for some wounded "common" soldiers at Aquia Creek. Capt. Morgan also stated that he had been a member of Gen. Siegel's staff—not Gen. Sickles' staff—and that he had not gone to the depot to meet him because of the character in which he came. When Capt. Morgan made that statement, he supposed that Gen. Siegel was in the party, it having been announced that he would accompany it. The reporter, in taking his speech, set behind Capt. Morgan, the latter speaking away from him, and mistook the name of Siegel for that of Sickles. Capt. Morgan, standing in the name in the possession, "Siegel's," which heightened the similarity. The fact that there was no Siegel in the party contributed, too, to lead the reporter into error.

It will thus be seen that Mr. Brown has allowed himself to be stirred up by a circumstance that could have been explained in a very few minutes had he adopted the common sense course of asking Capt. Morgan a question or two in regard to the matter. The latter has lived in Duluth some time, and is to be counted really.

In regard to the statement concerning the occurrence at Aquia Creek, Capt. Morgan today was asked a few minutes had he adopted the common sense course of asking Capt. Morgan a question or two in regard to the matter. The latter has lived in Duluth some time, and is to be counted really.

From information furnished by a friend of Capt. Morgan's, it is learned that the latter was forced to leave the South because he was an abolitionist, being one of those brave men of high principles who gave up his means of livelihood and his home rather than be convicted of suffering persecution and being driven forth a stranger for conscience's sake.

Mr. Bryan Gave the Gold Democrats a Shake-Up in Illinois.

Ex-President Harrison and M. E. Ingalls Were Handled Without Gloves.

Demonstrations For the Nominee and For Gov. Altgeld Were Hearty.

Buda, Ill., Oct. 24.—Early this morning William J. Bryan began his work. Before 8 o'clock he spoke at Ottawa and a good-sized crowd cheered his arraignment of the gold Democrats. His speech was devoted in the main to a general shaking up of the men whom he said nominated a ticket in order to elect a Republican. Ex-President Harrison and M. E. Ingalls, president of the Big Four Railway company, were given a few words at LaSalle, where Mr. Bryan spoke from a flat car from the rear of the train to a large crowd of enthusiastic admirers of himself and Governor Altgeld. The action of the latter gentleman during the strike some three years ago and his Spring Valley made the miners there loyal supporters of him, and the crowds at both places this morning showed demonstrative evidence of affection for the governor and for the presidential nominee.

At LaSalle Mr. Bryan said in part: "Two distinguished men have called me to account because of the advice which I gave to railroad employers. In speaking of the attempt of the railroads to coerce their employees, I said that in these hard times, when employment is so difficult to find, I did not think it was wise for laborers to do anything which would lose them their employment, and added that they should wear Republican buttons if necessary, march in Republican parades if they were commanded to do so, and even contribute to the Republican campaign fund if that was required by their employers. Mr. Ingalls, the president of a railroad, in a speech at Cincinnati, denounced me for advising employees to deceive their employers, and ex-President Harrison has charged me with teaching immorality in giving the advice which I have quoted. I am a victim of law, and when I advise employees to vote as they please, even though they must wear Republican buttons and in parades, I am taking higher moral ground and giving more patriotic advice than those who advise coercion and suppression of employees to vote the Republican ticket on election day, merely because they have been compelled to wear Republican badges during the campaign."

When a man criticizes me for advising employees to express their honest convictions at the ballot box, I ask what such people think of the Australian ballot. The Australian ballot is a secret ballot, and we have adopted it in this country in order to protect the voter from the influence of the employer. Mr. Harrison and Mr. Ingalls condemn me for telling them to vote as they please, they viciously condemn me for advising them to vote as they please. In fact, they condemn all secret ballots, and tell the citizen that he ought to announce in advance how he is going to vote. There are some who can announce their position in advance, and when a citizen is in a position to act with independence, I am glad to see him do so, but when an employer violates the rights of his employees by demanding that they shall march in parades or wear certain badges the employee has a right to take advantage of the secret ballot. "I am willing to let the public sit in judgment on the advice which I have given to employees if Mr. Ingalls and Mr. Harrison are willing to submit their advice to the public. I am willing that the public shall decide whether it is immoral for people to vote according to their conscience, without being subjected to discharge or punishment. Mr. Harrison and Mr. Ingalls condemn me for telling them to vote as they please, they viciously condemn me for advising them to vote as they please. In fact, they condemn all secret ballots, and tell the citizen that he ought to announce in advance how he is going to vote. There are some who can announce their position in advance, and when a citizen is in a position to act with independence, I am glad to see him do so, but when an employer violates the rights of his employees by demanding that they shall march in parades or wear certain badges the employee has a right to take advantage of the secret ballot."

A freight train had trouble south of Ladd, and the special on which Mr. Bryan was traveling was delayed at that place for a few moments, and the time was utilized by the nominee in making a speech to several hundred people. It was an enthusiastic crowd and cheered him repeatedly.

NO REPORT FOR A STRIKE.
St. Paul, Oct. 24.—The committee of five appointed by the garment workers to confer with Guttenman Bros. have gone over the grievances of the union with members of the firm, and decided that there is no ground for a strike at this time. The committee will, therefore, recommend at the next meeting of the union that the firm be asked to adopt the union label upon all goods manufactured by them.

ST. PAUL SCHOOL MATTERS.
St. Paul, Oct. 24.—At an informal meeting yesterday afternoon the school inspectors considered the subject of a successor to Mr. Gilbert. It developed that while there is a good deal of sentiment in favor of a local candidate, there is a strong undercurrent in favor of a foreigner, who could handle all the elements because he has been a part of none of them. Professor Joseph Carter, of St. Cloud, is being considered with much favor, and it would not be surprising if he received the unanimous vote.

POWERS IS MISSING.
Chicago, Oct. 21.—The Chicago police department of $50 for the recovery of information to the Chicago Police Department. Powers, of Owensboro, Ky. Mr. Powers has been making a visit to Chicago, but has not yet returned. His relatives have not seen since he was heard from. He was here, he secured funds for the Cuban relief corps to which he had contributed $100, and he had been heard from within the past few days.

RED HOT FOOTBALL.

Yale Has Hard Work With the Indians.

New York, Oct. 21.—In the game of football between Yale and Carlisle at Manhattan field today the Indians scored a touchdown in four and one-half minutes. Cayton ran the whole length of the field and secured the touchdowns and kicked the goal. Vanliver made a touchdown and Champney kicked the goal for Yale, this made the score even. Champney was pushed across the line for a touchdown. He then kicked the goal. Score at the end of first half, 12 to 6 in Yale's favor.

TRAIN ROBBERS.

Alton Gang Has Not Yet Been Found.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 24.—Up to noon today no trace of the quartet of train robbers, who boldly held up the regular westbound Chicago & Alton passenger train, twenty miles east of here last evening, has been found. Although expressing confidence in the ultimate capture, it is evident the local detectives have little faith in their ability to handle the men. The men were well disguised and have a good start on their pursuers, and doubtless were outside the county and had thrown off suspicion by daylight this morning. Nothing has been found to lead to the identity of the men, though the belief that they were no novices at the business, still adhered to. That it was a wind haul is substantiated by the express company officials today, they claiming that the packages of jewelry

POPULIST ADDRESS.

Loyal Support For Bryan and Watson is Asked.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The Populist national committee, through its chairman, Senator Butler, has issued an official address to members of the People's party urging them to support Bryan and Watson. It says: "The Populist party is the people's champion and warmly commends the People's party. It is not to be discouraged by the fact that there are two candidates for vice president in the field marching under Bryan's banner. It says there will be two months between the election and the casting of the votes by the electors and that there is surely wisdom enough in the two parties which support Bryan to adjust the complication satisfactorily to all."

FARMER IN JAIL.

For Contempt of an Order of the Court.

St. Paul, Oct. 24.—Roger Donaghue, a farmer of Washington county, was sent to the Ramsey county jail this morning by Judge Lochren of the United States district court for contempt in not obeying the mandate of the court. There was a hearing on an order to show cause in chambers this forenoon. Donaghue more California is For Bryan and Will Elect Six Silver Congressmen.

Iowa is Good For Over Forty Thousand Majority For Bryan.

Washington, Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Reports received today by the congressional Democratic committee from California are to the effect that six out of the seven fusion candidates for congress will be elected. In one district alone, according to the reports of the state committees, there are no doubt whatever, and that is owing to circumstances that may be adjusted before election day. In relation to the electoral ticket, the secretary of the Democratic state committee writes: "There can be no question about the result in California as far as Bryan is concerned. His majority is variously estimated from 30,000 to 60,000. I think it will approach the latter figure."

The chairman of the Democratic state committee of Iowa has received partial returns from a new poll of the state now in progress. So far returns from over one-fifth of the counties have been received, and they show an average gain of thirty-four in each precinct. The counties polled are a fair average of the state. Estimating the remainder at the same average gain per precinct, the result gives a majority of 45,000 for Bryan. There was a ripple of laughter at Democratic headquarters today when Vice Chairman Apsley's election predictions were read as they appeared in the laundry bulletin given out by the Republican congressional committee yesterday. Then it was reached, claiming Missouri, Texas and Virginia as "states likely to go for McKinley."

The reports received this week from Missouri show that Bryan's majority there will not be less than 50,000. As to Texas, the report received last Tuesday was that Bryan's majority in Texas would not be less than 100,000.

Mr. Bacon, secretary of the Democratic committee, estimates Bryan's majority in this state at 50,000. One state claimed by Apsley as certain for McKinley was Tennessee, when such thoroughly posted veterans as Senator Harris, high as less than 50,000 majority for Bryan. The Republicans were simply overwhelmed there in the spring elections, and the Democratic polls show large gains over the spring elections.

SILVER IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Silver Men Expect to Elect Ten Congressmen.

Philadelphia, Oct. 24.—The state executive committee of the National Silver party met at the state Democratic headquarters in Harrisburg to devise means to poll the full vote of the party in this state for Bryan and Sewall. D. G. Marlin, of Hazleton, chairman, reported that he had made a careful canvass of the state, and said the free silver vote was thoroughly united and would poll a large vote. Mr. Marlin thinks the Democrats and free silver men combined will elect ten congressmen in this state. He claims that the Republicans underestimate the strength of the free silver movement, especially in their west districts.

IN WEST VIRGINIA.

Populist Vote Will Be Given to Bryan.

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 24.—Col. Nat. Fitzgerald, People's party candidate for governor of West Virginia, has declined to continue to be a candidate, and has taken the stump for Gen. Watts and the entire Democratic ticket. It is pretty well settled that all the other candidates will pursue the same course. With fusion on this electoral ticket, which has been effected, the entire People's party vote of about 5000 will support Bryan and the entire Democratic ticket.

A POPULAR OFFICIAL.
Bethany, Mo., Oct. 24.—For the fourth consecutive time, the annual state W. C. T. U. convention, which has just adjourned unanimously re-elected Mrs. Clara C. Hoffman, of Kansas City, as state president. The other state officers elected for the ensuing year are: Miss Ellen Morris, Kansas City, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Julia A. Gager, Savannah, treasurer; Mrs. Kate Newton, Bolivar, recording secretary; Miss Lillian Woods, Maryville, vice president at large.

A MURDERER SENTENCED.
Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 24.—Judge Holmes today sentenced William Harris, the murderer of George Frank, to twenty-five years in the penitentiary. The jury was out for several hours and returned a verdict of murder.

APPOINTED BY GROVER.
Washington, Oct. 24.—The president has appointed George F. Moore of present district attorney for the middle district of Alabama, to be United States district attorney.

FREE RIDE, FREE GRUB.

Duluth & Iron Range to Swell the Parade.

Eveleth, Minn., Oct. 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Duluth & Iron Range railroad is running a free excursion for railroad men to Duluth today to take part in a railroad men's parade there tonight. The men are given free transportation, their dinner and their supper, besides getting their regular day's wages as an inducement to go. All section hands and all other employees available are included on the free list. A number of citizens at first intended to take advantage of the free transportation, but discovered they would have to ride on the local freight, so very few other than section men went. They will pick up all railroad men along the route.

CROOKED CLOTHIERS.

Who Are Said to Have De-frauded Some Creditors.

New York, Oct. 24.—Harriet L. Price and Barnett L. Price, Jr., comprising the firm of Price & Co., wholesale clothiers, were arrested today on warrants charging them with the fraudulent disposition of $4,000 worth of stock and $10,000 in cash. The warrants have been in business for some years. In January, it is alleged, they gave out a statement to merchandise creditors of $20,000, and in August, it is said, they returned this statement. On Oct. 6, they failed with liabilities of $14,000 and assets of $4,000. William Rose was made receiver of the firm. He found upon an examination of the books that they had $48,000 worth of stock of which there was no record upon the books. They had also drawn out large sums of money just before the failure. Their bail has been fixed at $100 each.

QUEEN WILHELMINA.

The Queen of Holland Was Confirmed Today.

The Hague, Oct. 24.—Queen Wilhelmina was confirmed today in a salon on the ground floor of the palace, in the presence of the court, Dr. G. J. Van DerFlier, the court chaplain, preached the confirmation sermon.

KILLED A SAILOR.

One of the Dauntless Crew Struck by a Shot.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—A Tribune special from Jacksonville, Fla., says: On the hurricane deck of the filibustering steamer Dauntless, a stain made by the blood of one of the vessel's crew killed by a shot from a Spanish gunboat during the filibustering trip. When ten miles off the shore the Contramasteri bore down on them and the Dauntless was forced to her best speed. Shot after shot was fired by the Spaniard. The little vessel was gaining when a cry from the pilot house and the crash of wood indicated that one shot had struck. Capt. Lomm rushed forward and found that Henry Wilkerson, a member of the crew, had been struck and cut in two. Driving ahead at full speed the Dauntless finally got out of range and escaped the Spaniard.

GEOLOGICAL SAVANTS.

San Francisco, Oct. 24.—There was a large gathering of members of the United States geological survey in this city to meet Charles O. Woodworth, D. C. Mr. Woodworth is chief of the survey, having succeeded Mr. F. V. Coville. He is making a tour of inspection throughout the country and will remain on the Pacific for some weeks. Yesterday morning he visited the faculty at the University of California and in the afternoon left for Palo Alto to meet Professor Jordan. He will return to San Francisco tomorrow. R. W. Griggs, geographer of the coast; G. H. Marshall and L. C. Fletcher, topographers, were in consultation with Mr. Woodworth, laying before him a brief resume of the work of his survey in California during the past summer and arranging a few details for the fall.

OREGON'S SEA-GOING TRIP.
San Francisco, Oct. 24.—After weeks of preparation the new United States line of battle ship Oregon is ready for the sea. She was ordered out some weeks ago, but it was discovered that her turret machinery was out of order and would not work. Then it was found that her compasses would have to be re-adjusted. Now, however, everything is in ship-shape on board. At an early hour she will steam over to San Francisco and if there is no fog she will pass out of Golden Gate. If there is fog, she will wait for favorable conditions. It is reported that the battleship will test her armament while out.

JOHN W. FOSTER'S MISSION.
San Francisco, Oct. 24.—Hon. John W. Foster, of Indiana, who negotiated the treaty between China and Japan at the close of the recent war, arrived here last night accompanied by Mrs. Foster, from Washington, D. C. Mr. Foster is on his way to Hawaii, Japan and China. It has been hitherto announced that he was going to Hawaii on a delicate diplomatic mission, but it is now stated that his real mission concerns only Japan and China. It is believed that Mr. Foster declined to go into any details, except to say somewhat humorously that he needed one of the papers said to be going on a diplomatic trip to the Hawaiian Islands. He will sail on the Hong Kong steamer Peru, Monday.

M. J. DAVIS,
President.

(Seal.)
Official.
R. A. MICHIGAN,
Clerk Board Public Works.
Duluth Evening Herald, Oct. 21-24.

It is indeed "the last clothes of summer" that constitute the fashions of the present, and while they are not in perfect harmony with the chill in the air and the autumn foliage tints, they have their special advantages between seasons before the new fashions are fully developed, says the New York Sun. But the shops are already decked out in winter garb with furs, rich velvets, and all the bright, warm colors; so the shirt waist simplicity has to give. It is to be continued, however, in a difference in material, for shirt waists of fine French flannel and chambray silk, with the white linen collar and cuffs, are to be worn all winter. House waists, too, will hold their own in fashion, distinguished from those of the summer by the little bolero jacket, which is such a predominating feature of all the new gowns.

LITTLE JACKETS.

These little jacket effects are pointed, square, or round, as they are most becoming to the figure, and they are made of velvet, silk, or cloth, covered all over with lace, embroidery, or braiding, and trimmed on the edge with a tiny ruche of chiffon, silk, or ribbon. So much of the fashioning of this little bolero in the way of renovating old gowns that it will surely gain favor very rapidly, but all fashions which can so shortly become common, it may be short-lived. It is not necessary that this jacket should extend across the back, and light silk plaids are very smart, with a little bolero front of lace covered with satin or velvet, and a velvet belt and collar. A pretty waist to wear with a black satin or a moire skirt is a black velvet bolero meeting the blue satin belt in the back and opening over a full front of white satin covered with cream lace. The sleeves may be of satin or velvet, and the collar is a high flaring one of velvet, ending with the jacket in front over a close collar of lace and white satin. Applique embroidery are used to trim these little boleros, and other fashionable trimmings for the edge is a narrow band of fur, with fur straps to fasten it across the front. It is promised that this jacket should be made of fur. White and black guipure lace are very effective, made into a separate jacket to be worn over different waists.

BANDS OF FUR.

Bands of fur are to be a popular dress trimming for this winter, and one stylish French gown of blue cloth has three rows of sable around the skirt to the top of the bodice, which is trimmed in form of a Y with the same fur. The waist is of blue silk covered with Irish guipure, and relieved by cloth braiding, which extend across the back and are trimmed crosswise at intervals, with groups of three narrow bands of fur. Another pretty imported gown for immediate use is of hyacinth blue cloth with pointed patterns of black braiding around the skirt. The bolero is of cloth entirely covered with the braid and edged with jet, and the vest is of cream satin and lace, with revers of flame-colored velvet. The sleeves have a box plait headed with black, the entire length of the arm and a cuff of the velvet; the belt is of black satin ribbon with a band of velvet on the upper edge. Grace printed velvets are used as an experiment in blouse waists in Paris this season, and it remains to be seen whether they will find favor here or not. The French dressmakers in America do not meet with the approval of the more refined American taste.

BLACK VERY FASHIONABLE.

Black is to be very much worn this season, and black cloth with a fine stripe of white or gray is said to be the latest thing for tailors' gowns. The silk linings are bright red, and small gold buttons decorate the coat bodies. The bolero is one of the favored materials, which is a sort of camel's hair cloth with lines forming a plaid, and ribbed cloths, such as poplin and reys and silk and wool broches, are also very popular. One pretty gown of black velvet of soft and black has a blouse waist of soft black ribbed silk finely tucked up and down and trimmed in front with a fitted down and some fancy buttons. The sleeves match the skirt, and a narrow belt is of silk, fastened with a fancy buckle.

All sorts of gauzy materials are in as great demand as ever for waists and evening gowns, and mouseline brilliant, which has a satin finish, is especially pretty. The new crepe de chine are very fine, and added to these are the velvet broadened gauzes, the gauze Louise with a fancy stripe, and a mouseline de soie patterned all over with a fine silk cord. Tulle trimmed with flowers and made over white silk is to be a favorite bolero for debutantes, and for matronly women there are fancy black broadened with colored flowers, and black Russian net.

MANY NEW LACES.

New laces of all kinds are shown in more beautiful patterns than ever before, and their uses are legion. Mouseline, Venetian, very popular, and almost every gown has a bit of lace somewhere on the bodice. Entire waists of lace are very much worn, and they are made for the most part of a color with pretty, striped, close sleeves. Lace waists are also used with skirts and sleeves of cloth or silk, and partially covered with the fancy embroidered bolero. There are lovely insertions to match most of the laces; and applique embroideries, which are very thin in effect, come in every conceivable design and color. Velvet figures appear in a lace foundation, and satin designs on cloth or satin of another color. The net gowns are especially pretty, and jeweled trimmings of all kinds are used alike on cloth, silk, velvet and gauze gowns. Pretty dress trimmings, too, are the chiffon and silk plaids, edged with narrow cream or black lace. One simple theater waist, worn with a black satin skirt, was of pink tulle silk trimmed down either side of the front with an accordion-plaited ruffle of pink chiffon edged with black satin ribbon. The belt was of black satin, as was the collar, which had a ruche of pink chiffon standing up inside.

NEW BOLERO SHAPES.

Following are descriptions of some of the many shapes in boleros. A dainty one of cloth like the skirt and sleeves, has two points with an applique velvet trimming and a velvet belt over a vest of fine, used silk. Lace frills finish the neck and sleeves, and the style is very becoming to both slim and stout figures. A pretty black velvet jacket has a band of guipure insertion on the edge and the bolero is of cloth trimmed with an applique of velvet and braid. The vest is of cream white lace and the belt and collar of green velvet. Another gown of brown cloth has a trimming of embroidered chene silk set in on either side and edged above with a band of brown fur. The double bolero of brown velvet is trimmed with the fur, as are the sleeves below the puff of velvet, and the bodice is of the chene silk. The velvet belt divides in three parts across the front, showing the silk between, and is fastened with fancy buttons.

WOOL CANVAS DRESSES.

Wool canvas dresses are very desirable for winter wear, for, unlike cloth, they are thin enough to be comfortable in the house and warm enough to answer every purpose for street gowns. Brown, black and green are good colors, and black and white insertions and edge are used for trimming the bolero and the skirt. The front of the blouse may be of white or some bright color.

FOR YOUNG GIRLS.

Among the pretty coming dresses for young girls is one of striped and flowered silk silk. The skirt is made in the new way, with the fullness laid in tiny plaits over the hips, and the waist is a blouse shirred in with a lacing and tiny cords around the cream lace yoke, and opens in front over a lace vest. The elbow sleeves are in double puff, tied in with pink ribbon, and the belt and collar are of the same ribbon. An other model for a girl of 15 is carried out in flowered silk, with tight-fitting bolero, and vest of chiffon, with a plait of lace on either side. A walking dress of gray canvas shows a white mouseline bolero, and a canvas bolero, trimmed with three rows of plaited narrow plaid ribbon, and a blue silk belt. The material in the skirt is folded over to form a panel in front. Plaid wool gowns make pretty school dresses for young girls, and a few bands of bias velvet and some small buttons trim them sufficiently. A blouse waist of flowered silk with yoke, hands and skirt of plain serge, is another good school gown.

The new millinery displays the usual collection of extreme styles, shaves and exaggerated finches, but we can hope for something less picturesque and more generally becoming later, when good taste has modified them to our use. There are some striking revivals of old time hats which look as if they might have come out of some of Gauguin's pictures, and photographs of the last century portraits by English artists have really furnished the milliner with many of her models.

The high, rather pointed crowns and wide brims, rolled a little on one side, trimmed with many plumes and showy feathers, are some of the latest shapes, and are becoming to very few women. These large hats vary in the height of the crown and the width of the brim, which rolls more or less at the sides as you wish, but the Madonna shape, which is the most popular, is the exception; so the low-crowned, medium-brimmed hats are quite as fashionable as the high ones. The felt hats in green, blue, black and brown are very nice, and all the necessary brims are given in the trimming of feathers, whisks, and ruffs of ribbon and velvet. Velvet hats of all colors and shapes are being worn very much, and the small bonnet shapes are pretty trimmed with fur tails, cream lace and jeweled ornaments.

A PRETTY TOQUE.

One very pretty toque is of black and green velvet, with a soft, full rim, and trimmed with cream lace and steel buttons. Another toque is of green velvet trimmed with lace and pink roses. The Triam gown, which has a velvet of two shades, woven together like basket work for the crown, the velvet ribbon scraps for the rim, and trimmed with violets and lavender crepe. Pink, yellow, Empire, green and violet velvet bon-nets are made for evening wear, with glittering ornaments for a finish, with flowers or feathers, and there are all sorts of tapers in capote shape, without any strings. Shaded velvet, chrysanthemums in purple, violet and pink, with the green leaves, and a fashionable mouseline, and feathers are sometimes arranged in front like a crest. Louis XV hats, with narrow brims turned up, are worn, and among the imported novelties are hats of leather, which are recommended for cyclists, except those of white kid, which are to be worn for calling and on other dressy occasions.

PARIS FANCIES.

Simple But Leaning Toward Oriental Patterns.

French fancy wools are this year rather simple in design and show, as old summer materials, a study of oriental patterns. They are mainly formed of a plain ground and a superimposed chevron pattern in damask or bangle weave. The pattern of damask is a plain ground, or as a bangle figure in cashmere colors, but mixed with damask. The character of the patterns may be inferred from one of a broken scroll in black on a gold ground, or of red or saffron, the design covering well the ground with an all-over effect. Novel responses are not being made, says the New York Sun.

But novelty wools have not now the fashionable vogue they formerly had, and it may be useful to say so. They are tended to be worn every day through-out the season, and takes the place of the variety of changes of other times. It is a costume as is a man's business suit, and such dress needs to be of durable and plain material.

FINISHED WOOLS.

Years ago figured wools were made up with a bodice and trimmed, and extra wrappings were put on for the street, and this is true now of the afternoon dress of women of leisure, when they go out for a ceremonious visit. A visiting dress may be of wool as well as of silk, and it is just here that the velvet and a fashionable use, though it is but truth to say that even here plain cloth is for the most part preferred.

Scotch plaids do not come under this structure. They have been produced in quantities suggesting a run, and will be very much worn. They take for the street a jacket of plain material, blue or green.

A model gown in novelty wool is of brown velvet and trimmed with white, brown velvet and ruffles of silk buttons. It has a fitted jacket bodice, opening at a yellow chiffon front. The bolero has a blue, beige behind and is short on the hips, like a flared, and slightly pointed, covering the front. Revers and cuffs are of velvet, and a wide velvet puff is at the foot of the skirt. Buttons are at the bottom of the waist, and on the front and cuffs. This is a visiting gown and requires an extra cloak or fur.

FOR WALKING WEAR.

With regard to street costume proper it is too early to say what development jackets may take when cold weather sets in. In the fashion for the demure, the new consists in copying summer fashin warmer material. What was in plaid is now in serge or cloth or velvet, and the form is fitted or loose, as one shape is preferred to the other. A dress of black serge just made has the front broadly topped over with a double row of stitching and three large snatched pearl buttons on each seam near the top. Short loose coat, double breasted, with two rows of buttons carrying up the lines of lines on the skirt. Standing turn-over collar. Bolero of buff corded in which red and yellow predominate. Red felt hat trimmed with black velvet, a rhinestone buckle and black tips and red and orange velvet rosettes under the brim.

A fashionable street dress that does not need to be made by a tailor and need not cost a great deal, is made of Scotch plaid wool, which is to be had in inexpensive qualities, with a shawl loose coat of dark green or blue velvet or velveteen. The coat should have some fullness in it, say a box plait behind, turned inside, and a side plait on each side of the front. This fullness is a sort of compensation for the lack of good tailor cut and also for any cheapness in the material. It will be easy for the amateur to finish the neck of a loose plaited ruche of the velvet than with a collar. A satin ribbon bow may be placed at the back of the neck of a similar wide band in front. A bishop sleeve will be the easiest to make with a turn-over cuff. The bolero may be trimmed with narrow ruffles of velvet, say two at the top and one nearly half way up.

LOOSE COATS.

Preference seems to be largely for ground and bangle patterns in the loose coat, and the form will certainly serve as a foundation for innumerable fantasies in velvet and fur for rich winter dress. Another thing that will tend to keep it in favor is that it is found very adaptable for bicycle wear. Jacket sleeves are such modest gigns as to pass unnoticed. Buttons are rather more in vogue than usual, and a preponderance is shown with their choice. They are in oxidized silver and gilt, with enameled or repousse patterns, and also in the mother-of-pearl and colored enamels.

Skirts of wool costumes promise to be a little shorter than usual. It is tiresome and nearly impossible to hold up the weight of an English serge of the quality in use, and tailors say they should clear the ground.

THE COMING STYLE.

As to the style of the autumn dress, since there is no longer any emphasis given to the sleeves, it is not easy to say in just what it consists. Its tendency may be inferred from the following details. The jacket is rather short, and has a certain bobbed-off look, as though it were a pendant to the collar. It hangs from the neck and so offsets the bust, and as it is as wide as the hips, these last are shadowed and practically annihilated. The skirt, by a refinement in its cut, still further offsets the hips. Instead of being convex at the top and so following the natural form, the outline runs from the belt to the foot in a line nearly straight or even slightly flaring outwards. Besides the girdle, used by the tall, there are other sleeves close at the top and wide at the elbows, that give to the shoulders a narrow effect. Finally, the hat is no longer trimmed on both sides alike, and so appears smaller than it did. It is less loaded with trimming, and the crown is more in view. Also high crowns are being tried.

From all this it would seem that fashion is tending towards a long, slender figure. The costume of art permits women to look plump at one time and slim at another, and we seem to be on the way towards such a metamorphosis. Winter will tell.

FOR THE CHASE.

While street gowns have been preparing for town, the fortunate world that possesses chateaux or has friends that do, and so lingers on in the country, has been having made for it hunting costumes after English models, in which it is pretended to fish and shoot. These gowns are made of heavy English material and may be finished with leather facings. The skirt stops between the knee and ankle; it is flat on the front and sides, with the fullness thrown behind, but must have amplitude enough for ease in walking. A costume in green cloth has a fitted bodice, with plain round basque without godets, fastened down the front with black brandebourges, with a wide black silk elastic belt. Black soutache on the sleeves and down the front seams of the skirt, ending in an ornament of three loops. White linen collar and black necktie. High, black gaiters and blue and green plaid stockings, soft felt hat with peacock feather. Another costume in brown homespun is made with a short double-breasted box-coat, and the coat and skirt is faced with brown leather. Skirt of blue and green plaid, with turnover collar of the same, and black tie. Soft brown felt hat, with black quill. High laced tan boots and black stockings, basket with red or sun.

CHATEAU TOILETTES.

After tramping across fields in this severe and boyish costume, evening finds the same woman in the softer draperies of what is technically known as a "toilet de chateau." At this time of year the dressmakers call every elaborate afternoon gown a chateau toilet. Comes under this head not only the gown one puts on for the dinner and evening if staying at a country house, but the dress-up gown as well, that one needs for dinners and other occasions in town.

Such gowns are long-sleeved and high-necked, and the materials are velvet, cloth or silk, with accessories of chiffon, fur, lace and jeweled passementerie. The foundation for some of the prettiest ones is the bolero. Others have a low-necked blouse like the skirt over a high bolero of chiffon or lace. A few are made in princess form.

A dress of this sort is composed of a skirt and short bolero with sleeves of ivory white cork screw cloth, and a collar of blue chiffon, with a narrow Russian belt of gold ribbon set with imitation turquoises. The front of the bolero is plaited to form an effect of jabot, and the top of the sleeve is bunched from the close part, and is slashed and plaited and falls in the same way, and all the bolero is stitched round an inch from the edge, so that it appears hemmed.

Another is made of blue and green plaid silk. The blouse, but not the sleeves, is covered with white chiffon, and over the blouse is a sleeveless bolero of blue velvet. The bolero is lined and corded with green, and has appliques at the corners of gold passementerie sewn with mock emeralds. Narrow blue velvet knotted in front, with a buckle of gold and emeralds. These jeweled passementeries are not necessary to the dress, but they are considerably worn, and it may be well to say that they are not at all out of the reach of the modes. In Paris, at least, they are so cheap as to tempt to abuse. They are in vogue only in the evening, and should then be used with discretion.

A PRINCESS GOWN. A princess gown of white cloth has a yoke and sleeves of brown velvet. It is bordered with sable round the front, round the yoke and the top of the neck, band, and two straps of sable run over each shoulder.

A gown of black satin has a low-necked blouse with sleeves of the satin, slashed open down the front, over a bolero of black Brussels net. On the bolero are appliques of the net. On the skirt is a plait or ruffle of the net.

A novelty among the materials for black gowns is a mixture of silk and wool, so woven to show the silk up and the surface loose, and wrinkled in such places as crossbars, polka dots and stripes that contrast in relief with the dead wool ground. Some of them are striped with velvet, and the effect is particularly good. This material is rather dear, but it needs no trimming beyond a little velvet. It is made up with a bolero. The same material is produced in colors.

NEW FRENCH UNDERWEAR. A few wools may be useful on underclothing. The change from warm to cold weather wear is not so radical with Frenchwomen as with Americans, and
